

The Engineering Faculty Partners Program

Launched in 2005, the Engineering Faculty Partners Program was initiated by the Canadian Engineering Memorial Foundation (CEMF) as part of its overall Partner Program initiative.

The Engineering Faculty Partners Program enables CEMF to work with Canadian universities with accredited engineering programs to recruit more female students to enroll in engineering. The CEMF website is used as a resource by students, high school teachers and parents and offers Universities the opportunity to market its courses and programs.

Similar to the Partner Program, Engineering Faculties can select a level of partnership, and depending on the level will be offered one to three pages on the CEMF website to tell young and aspiring students about the University's engineering programs, life on campus, entrance requirements and so on. logos, information on programs and courses with links back to the University website.

Faculty Partners are recognized and promoted in CEMF publications including posters, brochures, and scholarship fundraising campaigns. A specific brochure championing current Faculty Partners is distributed widely to donors and other universities. All Faculty Partners are identified and recognized at the Foundation's Annual Awards Luncheon held in conjunction with the Engineers Canada AGM.

The three levels of contribution are:

- |  |         |
|--|---------|
| <input type="checkbox"/> Faculty Gold Partner (three pages on the website) | $3,000 |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Faculty Silver Partner (two pages on the website) | $2,000 |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Faculty Bronze Partner (one page on the website)  | $1,000 |

The Foundation currently offers 12 scholarships for women in engineering at the undergraduate, Masters and Doctorate levels of study in Canada.
